

Greetings,

I do not feel that providing wiretapping access for VOIP is necessary, or will prove successful. Unlike analog systems, where voice scrambling is expensive and not easily obtainable, using VOIP allows interested parties (government and private citizens) to use digital encryption of the signal before transmit.

Robert Leyva